San Diego News Room has been providing insightful, comprehensive online news to educated, professional and civic-minded residents of the San Diego region since October 2008. While our website continuously reflects new content, we choose to focus on subjects which are pertinent beyond the 24-hour news cycle, leaving day-to-day reports to other sources while we provide what is missing—a source of meaningful information on the most crucial issues.

Our site and monthly print edition provide original content from our reporting staff reflecting the subjects which are most important to the San Diego region, such as development and water supply, and those which are uniquely characteristic of our region, such as endurance sports. We also publish guest editorials and columns written by professionals and well-known public officials on a variety of subjects influencing San Diego County.

SDNR's strong emphasis on local government is complemented by colorful, community-specific content from our media partners, which include San Diego Uptown News, San Diego Metropolitan Magazine, La Jolla Village Voice, Peninsula Beacon, Downtown News, Beach & Bay Press and San Diego Pets. We take pride in our original restaurant reviews and wedding section, and boast a strong following of our columnists and guest contributors. Our online and print forums allow both residents and elected officials to weigh in on the issues that matter most.
